from Disney Productions to high profile stars in the film, pop, jazz and classical music industry such as Quincy Jones, Ronan Keating, Phil Collins, Pink, Laura Pausini, Vladimir Cosma, Charles Aznavour, and Tony Bennet to name but a few...

Renowned for its handling of complex live events and intricate film, television and music productions, the Dinemec studio design is the result of fine workmanship by leading experts from New York to London and has been created with the most advanced acoustic design in mind. Says Director Paul Sutin: "The acoustics are designed for precision recording of high definition audio, 5.1 surround sound for music and film, as well as live concerts. The four recording studios can handle every type of media production imaginable – from a prestige gala concert for 500 people to a 120-piece orchestral and choir recording, as well as film dubbing and sound engineering for pop singers, jazz artists or rock bands."

Paul Sutin, Dinemec Studios Director, is an Anglo-Swiss music and television producer with over 25 years of experience in the industry. He has composed a myriad of songs and music scores for clients such as Steve Howe, guitarist of the legendary band YES, as well as music composition and production for film and TV projects with Phil Collins. He has recorded many of the great orchestras including the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, the London Philharmonia Orchestra, The Royal Scottish National Orchestra and the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande and has recorded for Yehudi Menuhin as well as Pope John Paul II at the Vatican. Paul Sutin also produces television programmes for the Discovery Channel as well as many other US, French and English television channels.

With a plethora of television and music shows produced all over Europe, Dinemec Studios has also hosted prestigious promotional events such as the UNICEF charity gala featuring a live concert in Studio 1, the James Bond Casino Royale launch, the LVMH Guerlain perfume launch and electronic media coverage for the IWC watches promotion campaign. The studios' central European location provides a strategic venue for excellent quality and competitive productions, entertainment ventures, and business events of all types, whilst allowing the artists and participants to enjoy a secure, discrete and inspiring environment.
